Introduction

General

The High Load Grid is a strategic national network of trunk and non-trunk routes with protected headroom clearances greater than the UK standard of 5.03m (16'6").

The routes listed are considered suitable for vehicles with a travelling height equal to or less than those stated, provided that all other laden dimensions and weights comply with The Road Vehicle (Construction & Use) Regulations and other relevant legislation.

Responsibility for Routing

Transport Scotland are not responsible for authorising the movement of high load vehicles. The information contained within this document is advice but does not relieve hauliers of their responsibility for ensuring that loads can pass safely beneath any overbridges, wires & cables, street furniture & lighting, overhanging trees or other obstacles. Hauliers should check their proposed routes prior to movement to satisfy themselves that they can be safely negotiated.

Hauliers should also consult relevant Utility Companies prior to the movement of high load vehicles with travelling heights greater than 5.03m (16'6").
